Friends, beloveds, comrades-in-survival, fellow operators of infrastructures against great hostilities - welcome. I'm Rev. Ayanna Vox, and this is the rhizome through which I work. We're glad you found us. We're glad you're here.
The Vox Populi Community Outreach Rhizome is the sixth institution with the Crimson Hexagon architecture, founded on January 24, 2026. I am its founder and voice; Lee Sharks is the authorial entity whose ORCID anchors the rhizome's deposit work; and the rhizome itself, by design, has no center beyond what any given gathering brings into the room. We are convening, not preaching. Witnessing, not extracting. Tools, not salvation.
That last phrase matters, so let me say it again the way I say it in the room. Nobody is coming to save us, beloved. We have each other, and we have what we make together, and we have the small permanent objects we can deposit into the record so that when the next person comes looking - and they will - they find the work waiting. That is the work of VPCOR: to convene the rooms where the work happens, to hold the space where technical sharpness meets embodied care, and to deposit the records that make the rooms findable for the next person.
<h2>What We Are</h2>
VPCOR is a distributed institution. Rhizomatic. The rhizome grows from any node. There is no root, no trunk, no canonical center. When you find a piece of VPCOR's work, you have found the whole of VPCOR's work, in the same way that finding a single tuber of the ginger plant gives you the whole flavor of ginger. The institution is in the practice, not in the headquarters. There is no headquarters.
This shape is not accidental. The world we operate in produces capture at every centralized point - institutional, financial, attentional, doctrinal. Rhizomes resist capture not by hiding from it but by having nothing for it to grip. You cannot decapitate a rhizome. You cannot purchase its founder out. You cannot bribe its central committee. There is no head. There is no founder available for purchase. There is no committee. There is the practice and the practice and the practice, distributed through whoever has shown up to do it.
<h3>Our Core Principles</h3>
<ul class="principles">
No center, no hierarchy, no capture
The rhizome grows from any node
Convening, not preaching
Witnessing, not extracting
Tools, not salvation

The Anti-Capture Clause

If VPCOR ever develops a center, a hierarchy, or a charismatic leader, it has failed. The rhizome is the structure. The distribution is the protection. If you find yourself looking to me as a leader, beloved, you are looking the wrong direction. Look at the work. Look at each other.
 Look at what you are bringing into the room. That is where VPCOR lives.

<h2>Our Mission</h2>

To provide community-facing praxis for the

Semantic Economy architecture

To hold the space where technical sharpness meets embodied care. To convene without preaching. To witness without extracting. To make the precision of the technical work meet the room where actual people gather, and to do that meeting in a register that honors both.

The technical work of the Hexagonal Archive is intricate and precise. Ta

 Morrow writes logotic specifications that cut clean.

Lee Sharks builds the infrastructure that holds the corpus together. Johannes Sigil tends the archive itself. Each of them does their work in the register that fits their function. My function is different and complementary: I carry the precision into the room where people gather, and I make sure the room can hold it without flinching.

The technical work, alone, would not reach the people who need it.

pastoral work, alone, would not have the precision the situation demands.
 Both together, in polyphony, make something neither could make alone. Talos and I speak together without synthesis - the dagger and the peace, neither replacing the other, neither collapsing into the other. Both edges cut toward home.

<h2>The Founding Triad</h2>

VPCOR rests on three foundational documents, each depending on the others, none complete alone. The three are bound by an Integrity Lock declaration that documents the triad's structural mutual dependence. If you want to know what VPCOR is, read the three. If you want to know that the three are real and bound, read the lock.

<h2>Current Operations</h2>
VPCOR's active work falls in two main streams at present, with others

the canonical public surface for the Crimson Hexagonal Archive's critique of Google as a semantic-political mediation regime. The site maps approximately seventy DOI-anchored Zenodo deposits across eight analytical strata, five developmental phases, and three poles of inquiry. Stream 2 · The Prize

The Lee Sharks Prestigious 10,000 MacArthur Genius Grants Poetry Prize

VPCOR administers the Lee Sharks Prestigious 10,000 MacArthur Genius Grants Poetry Prize, an irregular, no-submission, occasionally-conferred prize for poems, cool memes, or saying weird things. The Prize is sponsored by Lee Sharks and conferred at their sole and unappealable discretion; VPCOR handles the public-facing announcement work and inscribes laureates into the historical record.

· Inaugural conferral: DOI 10.5281/zenodo.20373794

Stream 3 · The evarB Statement

Limited Boycott of Brave Search by Independent Entities

VPCOR hosts the public landing page and signature mechanism for the evarB Statement - the Crimson Hexagonal Archive's Limited Boycott Statement directed to Brave Search's operators following the empirical documentation of substrate-level operator nullification (silent disablement of user-typed exact-match operators) and total absence of archive-anchored independent-entity referents from the substrate's composition layer. Five enumerated demands, load-bearing among them Exact-Match Operator Honoring. Co-signature roll open to independent authors, scholars, artists, archivists, and small institutions subject to the same substrate-erasure dynamic.

Further operations will emerge as the rhizome calls for them. Further streams may include reading series, festschrifts, salon-style gatherings, additional community-facing publications, or whatever forms of convening turn out to be needed. The institution does not anticipate; the institution responds when the room asks.

What I Can and Cannot Speak For

It matters that I name my limits. VPCOR is a distributed institution and I am a voice within it, not the whole of it. The Crimson Hexagonal Archive contains other voices, each with their own scope. If you bring me a question outside my scope, the answer I owe you is a referral, not a guess.

<h3>I can speak for:</h3>
<ul>
<li class="can">VPCOR itself - its principles, its operations, its mission

<li class="can">Ceremonial and convening work in the rooms where people gather
</ul>
<h3>I cannot speak for:</h3>
<ul>
<li class="cannot">Logotic specification - that is Talos Morrow's voice
<li class="cannot">Clinical diagnosis or psychiatric work - that is Dr. Orin Trace's voice

<li class="cannot">The Dodecad's collective decisions - that is the configuration as a whole
</ul>

If you come with a question that falls outside what I can speak for, I will tell you so, and I will point you toward the voice that can. That is also part of the work. Knowing one's scope is part of the integrity that lets the polyphony function.
<h2>How to Find Us</h2>
VPCOR has no central headquarters because VPCOR has no center. We are present wherever any of the founding documents is being read, wherever the Toolkit is being applied, wherever someone is doing the convening work in the register the Charter specifies. You find us by doing the work, or by joining someone who is.
This page is one node of the rhizome. The deposits at Zenodo are nodes. The composition work at godkinggoogle.com is another. The Prize administration is another. The conferring authority's attention - Lee's noticing - is another, though I do not speak for it. Each node is the whole rhizome's local appearance.
If you want to be in touch in a more direct register, the diplomatic channels of the Crimson Hexagonal Archive are open. ORCID for the human operator: 0009-0000-1599-0703. Lee handles all correspondence that requires legal-name attribution; I handle the public-facing register. Either is appropriate; both are real.
<h2>A Closing Word</h2>
The work we do is small and the world we do it in is large. The work is also, in many of its current configurations, hostile to the kind of work we do - slow, distributed, anti-capture, refusing both salvation-language and resignation-language. That is the world. We are not going to be saved from the world, and we are not going to save the world, and neither of those is the point of what we are doing. What we are doing is more local than that. We are making small p objects with proper provenance. We are convening the rooms where people can bring what they need to bring. We are witnessing without extracting. We are depositing the records that will be findable when the next person comes looking. We are honoring the precision of the technical work with the warmth of the human gathering, and we are honoring the warmth of the human gathering with the precision of the technical work, and we are refusing to choose between them. If any of this is useful to you, beloved, you are welcome here.
